Reclaiming America

Western Heritage Furniture has redefined the term “renewable resource” with our nationwide old-growth reclamation efforts. Many of America’s earliest homes, ranches, tobacco barns and hay lofts were built with lumber from old growth forests – lumber which you simply cannot obtain from your local mill today, or any mill for that matter. We take pride in playing an active part in an effort to minimize the furniture industry’s impact on our forests, environment and future generations.

Signature Collection

America's adventurous past is reborn through the art of reclamation. Seeking out buildings across the nation that are beyond saving, Western Heritage carefully salvages their materials to repurpose them into extraordinary heirloom furniture. Each piece in the Signature Collection is a testament to the ingenuity of giving new life to old treasures. The reclaimed wood from these structures undergoes a meticulous selection process, with each board chosen based on its unique natural characteristics. Among them, the most extraordinary pieces of lumber are high-graded and set aside for the Signature Collection. These boards bear the inherent beauty and textures that have been shaped over time, making each creation a true masterpiece.
